Presenters

Keynote: Amy Keller, MS, RD, LD

Amy Keller has been a registered dietitian for 17 years, working primarily in community hospitals. She has a special interest in Celiac disease, weight bias, wellness, and non-diet weight management. She is the past chair of the Dietitians in Gluten Intolerance Disorders practice group and is the current chair of the Medical Nutrition Practice Group. She founded and has led the Logan County Celiac Support group in Bellefontaine since 2010.

She is a preceptor for dietetic interns from Bowling Green State University and Bluffton University. She is a popular speaker, regularly presenting at regional and national events. She is a frequent contributor to Gluten-Free Living magazine and serves on the magazine's dietetic advisory board. She recently published an article on the gluten-free diet for Diabetes Spectrum and is the co-author of two articles in the European Journal of Clinical Nutrition on Allergen Advisory Statements.

Amy holds a bachelor's degree in nutrition from West Virginia Wesleyan College and a master's degree from Ball State University. She has also completed additional training in Celiac disease at the University of Chicago. She resides in Marysville with her husband, son, and two crazy dogs. She enjoys running, yoga, and jigsaw puzzles.

Tracy Ediger, MD, PhD

Dr. Ediger is Director of the Celiac Disease Center at Nationwide Children's Hospital and an Assistant Professor of Clinical Pediatrics at The Ohio State University College of Medicine. He attended the University of Illinois for his graduate studies and medical education and completed his residency and fellowship in pediatric gastroenterology at Boston Children's Hospital and Harvard Medical School. His research has focused on intestinal inflammation and resolution in the context of the intestinal stem cell. Dr. Ediger's clinical interests include all aspects of general gastroenterology, including inflammatory bowel disease, celiac disease and eosinophilic disorders.

Ivor Hill, MD, MB, ChB

Dr. Hill is Section Chief of Gastroenterology at Nationwide Children's Hospital. He is also Professor of Clinical Pediatrics at The Ohio State University College of Medicine.

One of the leading clinicians and researchers in childhood celiac disease, Dr. Hill has been instrumental in raising awareness of the disease in the United States. Notably, he was the chair of the North American Society for Pediatric Gastroenterology, Hepatology and Nutrition (NASPGHAN) committee that developed the first evidence-based guidelines on diagnosis and treatment of celiac disease in children. This has resulted in more people with celiac disease being identified and treated appropriately. Since 2003, Dr. Hill has consistently been listed in America's Top Doctors, America's Top Pediatricians, Best Doctors in America, Guide to America's Top Gastroenterologists, and Who's Who in Medical Science Education.

Mary Kay Sharrett, MS, RD, LD, CNSC

Mary Kay has been a Clinical Dietitian at Nationwide Children's Hospital for over 30 years and is the resident expert on the celiac diet. She has served on the Celiac Conference planning committee since its inception and is the clinical liaison to the Gluten-Free Gang Support Group that meets at Nationwide Children's Hospital. She has become a popular speaker at national and regional conferences and a favorite interview among the popular press.

Tracie Steinke, RD, LD, CDCES

Tracie Steinke has been a dietitian at Nationwide Children's Hospital since 2012 in both the inpatient and outpatient setting. She is a Certified Diabetes Care and Education Specialist working in Endocrinology. Special interests include Prader-Willi Syndrome and Celiac Disease.
